

The Telegraph

CALCUTTA TUESDAY 21 JULY 2015

(From left) Calcutta University vice-chancellor Sugata Marjit, education minister Partha Chatterjee, governor Keshari Nath Tripathi, Addlife Caring Minds founder director Minu Budhia, head of new initiatives at Addlife Preeyam Budhia and Jadavpur University vice-chancellor Suranjan Das at the launch of Addlife's one-year post-graduate diploma course in basic counselling on Monday. Classes for the course, which is affiliated to Calcutta University, will be held at Addlife's Sarat Bose Road centre six hours a week. Graduates in any field can opt for the course that will include mock sessions, case studies and project work. 'This is to produce more primary-level counsellors. It is also a way to empower yourself,' said Minu.